Casual wear at the Sunday Observer Fashion Designer of the Year 2007 Presented by Chula Nanayakkara

Here we feature the fashions created by the twelve finalists of the Sunday Observer Fashion Designer of the Year 2007, held recently.

Pink, white and blue seem to be the colours that are in style as they have been used by these designers. However sometimes you may also glimpse some oranges and browns as well.

As these dresses show it is the fabric and not just the colour that is important sometimes, for the fabric, besides the style and design, can give the suitable look that the wearer yearns for.

So with all these colours and designs.. perhaps you just found what you have been searching for when it comes to casual wear, now that the festive season is here.
