With just four weeks more for the Ms Lanka pageant to become a reality at the BMICH, the competition for the Sunday Observer's Most Popular Contestant is hotting up with intensity. Who will be fortunate to wear the Sunday Observer glittering crown is anyone's guess judging from the way the count has been moving these past few weeks. Last Sunday, Apsara Senanayake topped the list with a count of 6,024 votes while Bavani Yerasha came a close second with 5,987 with Kaushamali Jayasekera in third position with a count of 5,913 votes. Today we hope Apsara will be able to maintain her lead, or Bavani Yerasha can upset the tables.

The Ms Lanka 2010 Beauty Pageant final in all its glorious trimmings will be held on December 11, 2010 at the BMICH. Tickets are available at Technique International, the School of Hairdressing and Beauty Therapy, 81/1, Horton Place, Colombo 7.

The Ms. Body Beautiful Mini Title was worked off at the Panorama Executives Residencies and 15 competitors are in the running to become the winner of the title. Sporting colourful two piece outfits the competitors displayed their attractive slim figures and put the judges in a quandary as to how best to mark them.

The judges were Naslin Jayawardana - Manager Business

Development, Sithara Gangabadage - Business Development Executive of Panorama Executive Residencies, Reza Rezaeaha - Civil Engineer Payry Energy AG, Sanjewa Batuwatta Senior Journalist/TV Programme Director, Asoka Cassiechetty - Co-ordinator Ms Lanka Pageant and Rochelle Fox - the first Ms Lanka title holder in 1995.

Keep your votes for the Sunday Observer Most Popular Contestant rolling in and go all out to make sure that your favourite contestant wins.

Ms Lanka 2010 Beauty for a Cause is presented by Technique International in association with the Sunday Observer. Sri Lanka's leading English newspaper with the largest circulation. The other sponsors are PICO Events, Sterling Flowers, Softlogic, Trendywear, AVS Systems
