

Flashback-2011

The annual "Tribute in Light" memorial that echos the shape of New York's World Trade Center twin towers is illuminated during the 10th Anniversary of the September 11, 2001 attacks at the lower Manhattan site of the World Trade Center September 11, 2011 in this view from Bayonne, New Jersey. L-R in the New York skyline are the Empire State Building (with red,white and blue lights), 1 World Trade Center, the Statue of Liberty and the Brooklyn and Manhattan Bridges.

Mahmoud Abbas, President of the Palestinian Authority, shows a copy of the letter requesting Palestine's full admission to the UN as a sovereign state during the United Nations General Assembly on September 23, 2011 at UN headquarters in New York. The Palestinian leader won huge applause and a standing ovation from some of the assembly as he entered the hall shortly after asking the UN to admit the state of Palestine.

Occupy Wall Street members stage a protest march near Wall Street in New York, on October 12, 2011. The "Occupy Wall Street" movement's momentum has reached many similar protests across the US and the world.

Mulmillo (L) closes the eyes of her two-year-old son Mahmud moments after he died from malnutrition and related complications at a local hospital in Somalia's capital Mogadishu on August 15, 2011. Mulmillo, her husband and three children fled their village in the Lower Shabelle region of southern Somalia and came to Mogadishu in search of a refuge from a severe drought in the region. More than 100,000 people have fled to Mogadishu from other drought-struck Somalia regions in search of food and water, but insecurity in one of the world's most dangerous cities is hampering aid flows. Some 12 million people in parts of Ethiopia, Djibouti, Kenya, Uganda and Somalia are in danger of starvation in the wake of the region's worst drought in decades.

A double decker bus burns as riot police try to contain a large group of people on a main road in Tottenham, north London on August 6, 2011. Two police cars were on Saturday set ablaze in north London following a protest over the fatal shooting of a 29-year-old man in an armed stand-off with officers. The patrol cars were torched as dozens gathered outside the police station on the High Road in Tottenham.

Egyptian ousted president Hosni Mubarak lies on a stretcher as he is wheeled into a courtroom in Cairo on September 7, 2011. Mubarak's trial resumed off camera with witnesses giving testimony to try to determine who gave the orders for killing of hundreds of protesters in the revolt that ousted Egypt's veteran president.

A handout picture obtained on July 30, 2011, shows Zara Phillips, (R) granddaughter of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, and England rugby player Mike Tindall in Holyrood Abbey, Palace of Holyroodhouse in Edinburgh, Scotland, on the occasion of their marriage.

A policeman rushes to extinguish Apostolos Polyzonis, a man who set himself alight outside a bank branch in Thessaloniki, northern Greece, on September 16, 2011 while protesting against government, banks and political parties. The 55-year old man has attempted self-immolation before, two-years ago, over financial problems. The man was hospitalized with non life-threatening burns.

France's President Nicolas Sarkozy (L), National Transitional Council (NTC) head Mustafa Abdel Jalil (C) and Britain's Prime Minister David Cameron (R) join hands in Benghazi September 15, 2011. President Sarkozy and prime minister Cameron travel to Libya, making stops in Tripoli and Benghazi, the first visit by foreign leaders since the toppling of the former regime.