The last of the mini pageants was held this past week and it was a special one when the attractive contestants had to vie for the title of Miss Veet Top Model. The Blonds Salon at Rajagiriya was the venue which radiated glamour, excitement and the buzz that goes with a mini pageant of such a nature.

The judges were Nalin Seneviratne, Director Supplies Reckitt Benckiser, the popular models Sharon Reimers and Hiran Yatowita. Theirs was an unenviable task, as the results reveal.

The grand finale is just round the corner and the twelve contestants groomed for the occasion are all ready to face the moment with a new built-in confidence.

The international arena too will surely be a cakewalk for them! What they have learnt is that beauty is not the only area judges look for in a contestant but also what they call 'brains and technological exposure' which is important if the contestants want to create that all important global impression.

Derana's Miss Sri Lanka opened in a big way for the sixth year and the finale will be a pageant filled with colourful splendour and never before fabulous entertainment, specially designed to suit a glamorous pageant of this nature. Derana is pulling out all stops to make this presentation a memorable one.

Who will wear the glittering Derana Veet Miss Sri Lanka crown? Your guess is as good as mine! The winner of the Sunday Observer Most Popular contestant competition will be announced at the pageant. Gosh it was a final burst from our readers! The Sunday Observer was inundated with your coupons and we hope your contestant will be crowned as the Most Popular Contestant.

Good luck to all the twelve contestants who will sashay down the catwalk to create that lasting impression on the judges to claim victory!
