All you beautiful ladies between the age of 18-28 years, hurry and send your applications to participate in the Ms. Lanka 2013 Beauty pageant. Once the applications close, Sunday Observer readers will also be able to actively be a part of the Ms. Lanka 2013 by voting for the most popular contestant, selecting your favourite from the contestants.

Ms. Lanka 2013 is organised by Mrs. Gwendoline Kuhathewa. Director, Technique International (Pvt) Ltd, Institute of Hairdressing, Beauty Therapy and Spa Management. The sponsors are Asian Fabrics, Ramya Holdings, Official Florist –Sterling Flowers, Official Computer Facilities–Soft Logic, Official Photographer–Studio B7, Official mini title venue sponsor–Pico

Events, Designer for the evening wear – Twinza. Ms. Lanka, Beauty for a Cause is held for the 18th successive year. Each year the presenters support Educational and Vocational Education for the underprivileged and differently-abled persons. Ms. Lanka is not a beauty show that will end when the beauty queen steps out. When the curtain falls on Ms. Lanka 2013 the glamour will reach out to those in need. This year, three worthy projects have been selected - projects that will better the lives of the mentally, physically and visually challenged; projects also designed to uplift the lives and dreams of the underprivileged living in different parts of Sri Lanka. Ms. Lanka 2013 will reach out to: The Federation of the visually Handicapped (SLFVH) Choir; eighteen persons who form the choir need two sets of uniforms each in preparation for Christmas carols. “Dayamina” the centre for the differently-abled-needs equipment for a Home Science room and two computers for the students. Don Bosco-Vocational Centre in Kilinochchi needs Equipment for NVO Hairdressing, Beauty Courses for the girls in Kilinochchi and equipment for a Gymnasium. Sunday Observer is the Print Media Partner for many years and together we look forward to make the event a success. So keep reading the Sunday Observer.
