Australia's High Commissioner to Sri Lanka and Maldives, Robyn Mudie hosted a farewell reception at her residence, attended by over 200 guests including ministers, members of Sri Lanka's security forces, diplomatic colleagues, and representatives of civil society and the non-government sector, last week.

Reflecting on her four years here, the High Commissioner spoke of the beauty and vibrant colour of Sri Lanka, and the warmth, hospitality and resilience of the Sri Lankan people. "I leave feeling very optimistic for Sri Lanka's future", and with "great confidence that the relationship between Australia and Sri Lanka will continue to go from strength to strength" High Commissioner Mudie said.
