Interviews in progress

The Grand Oriental Hotel was buzzing with activity last Sunday with applicants waiting to face their interviews for the Observer Designer of the Year Contest 2016. The contestants came from islandwide – from Universities, private institutions, freelance designers and designers working at institutions. Twenty eight applicants were selected to participate in the contest. The interviews started at 9 a.m. and ended at 3 p.m. The selected contestants were informed as to what was required of them and their participation in workshops to help them in their creative-designer capabilities.
